SOB STORY

Banker accused of manslaughter breaks down in tears in the witness box

ONE of the two brothers accused of killing a pleasure boat crewman sobbed in the witness box as he admitted drunkenly punching the victim.

Andrew Liddard (28) said he was shocked by film of him in the wake of the violent scuffle.

Liddard, of Hoddesdon, and his brother Christopher (23), of Challinor, Harlow, both deny the manslaughter of Michael Reed (67), who suffered a fatal heart attack after they were involved in a scuffle at Tower Bridge Pier.

The Old Bailey jury was told Mr Reed, second in command of the River Thames cruise boat The Millennium of Peace, collapsed and died shortly after being punched in the face by Andrew Liddard.

The brothers, both bankers, had been on a drinking binge after visiting an art exhibition on June 2 last year. They became abusive on board the pleasure boat and were asked to leave.

Andrew Liddard told the jury how he and Mr Reed got involved when Christopher Liddard swung a punch at the boat's captain, Martin Welsh (28). Andrew Liddard is then said to have threatened to kill Mr Welsh and aimed a punch at him which missed but caught Mr Reed.

"It was a wild punch," Andrew Liddard told the court. "He sort of ducked down and I thought he was going to give me a slap which, to be honest with you, was probably well deserved. I thought he was going to shake or push me."

"I'm not in the habit of running round hitting old men. It's absurd. My brain had just gone into absolute meltdown."

When he was restrained, a witness captured him on film shouting: "I will murder you, I will kill you."

When asked about the film, he said: "When I saw it on the video it actually shocked me. I can't remember exactly what I said but it was atrocious. It was disgusting. I can't repeat it."

Liddard further wept as he told the court he was racked with guilt after not protecting Christopher when he was attacked with baseball bat in a road rage incident several years ago.

In his evidence, Christopher Liddard admitted he had lost his temper after Mr Welsh swore at his brother.

"At the time I felt as though I had been taken off the boat, when for my part I had done nothing wrong. I just thought it was unjustified for me to leave and I wanted to make sure I was going to get my money back.

Asked why he had aimed a punch at Mr Welsh, he replied: "Because of what he said, because of the way he was acting. I regret it; I didn't want there to be a fight. I wish I hadn't lost my temper for that second."

He continued: "Things were getting out of control and I was scared of the fight developing. Ultimately, I knew that I had thrown a punch and other people had got involved and had a fight."

"I had never been in a fight. At the time I was in shock. I was in pain as well but I obviously didn't want the fight to go on."

Christopher Liddard said he had tried to calm his brother when he was being restrained and shouting abuse because he knew he suffered from asthma.

"I was trying to convey that I wasn't going to go back into the fight. At this point, I wanted to get down to Andrew and calm it down. In front of me I could see two people, one leaning on Andrew's chest and the other on his neck."

"Andrew was shouting and he was really not very happy, so I was just trying to calm him down. He was saying 'You are strangling me' and then 'I'll kill you, I'll kill you'. Never at any stage did I think he meant it because people were lying on him and I thought he was trying to use shock tactics to get them off."

Earlier, the jury was told Andrew Liddard had admitted a charge of affray and Christopher Liddard admitted common assault.

The trial continues.

Watts wrong with our power supply?

By CHRIS MOSS
moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A YOUNG family has been left in the dark by a recurring power supply problem which has even baffled EDF Energy engineers.

Stuart and Becky Court have had to endure entire days without electricity since moving into their home in Paddock Mead, Harlow, just over a year ago.

Investigations into the cause of the problem have so far proved fruitless and it has now become so serious they have to rely on noisy external generators hooked up to their house to provide power.

However, thieves have already stolen one of the generators provided by their electricity supplier.

"It's an absolute nightmare for us," Mrs Court told the Star. "Everything was alright until the summer, when the whole street suffered a power cut."

"It didn't take EDF long to restore the electricity to everyone else's homes, but for some reason they struggled with ours. Ever since then, our supply has continually cut out."

The Courts - who have three children, Robyn (12), Eva (4) and Joe (2) - have repeatedly called on EDF to resolve the problem but nothing the company's engineers have done has worked.

"We've had our back garden dug up for nothing and now our house has been targeted by thieves after our generator, which itself is so noisy I have to sleep with earplugs," said Mrs Court.

SHOCKED: Becky Court with children Robyn, Joe and Eva

"The stress and disruption this has caused us is hard to take, especially when you're trying to bring three kids up in a freezing house."

A EDF spokeswoman apologised to the family for the inconvenience caused by the power cuts but said engineers were confident of resolving the problem by the end of this week.

"The fault has now been traced to a site close to the property and our engineers are due to carry out the repair over the next few days," she said.

"Under the guaranteed standards set by our regulator Ofgem this customer is not eligible for a payment. However, we do recognise the inconvenience experienced and on this occasion we have delivered flowers to the family and we will also send her £50 as a goodwill gesture."

Firefighter's flight from station mice

FIRE service chiefs are investigating reports that a firefighter closed a station after being scared by seeing two mice.

According to Essex Fire and Rescue Service, the Harlow-based officer was covering the nightshift at Waltham Abbey station when he saw the rodents scuttling around the floor.

He had been due to stay overnight at the station - which is only covered by crew from 9am-5pm - in order to respond to emergencies but closed up during the Friday night shift after telephoning bosses to tell them what he had seen.

He was ordered back to work and the matter is now subject to an internal investigation.

A spokeswoman for Essex County Fire and Rescue told the Star: "Following this morning's national newspaper reports relating to the closure of Waltham Abbey fire station on Friday night, we can confirm the incident took place."

She added: "He phoned to say he was not going to stay there and for about one-and-a-half-hours the station was closed. He was ordered back there."

MEET Molly and Birch, two new arrivals at Pets Corner who have been settling into their new home after arriving there this week.

The pair have arrived as company for 34-year-old Baff, a favourite with visitors to the children's zoo in Harlow Town Park.

Another new arrival is 12-week-old Tamworth piglet Emily, who will be rubbing snouts with the other pigs at the attraction over the Christmas period.

Eddie Johnson, chairman of Harlow Council's environment and community committee, said: "It has been a hectic few weeks for Pets Corner, with the nativity play taking place this weekend and three new arrivals."

"I'm sure they will be very popular with visitors and an added attraction over the Christmas and New Year periods."

Andy recalls his skate days in town

CORRESPONDENCE arrives from former skater Andy Lee, who tells Nostalgia he was one of the boys at the opening of Harlow's first skate park in the 1970s, which we pictured recently. The Ladyshot Skatepark was unveiled by the late councillor John Moore in 1978.

Steaming up at Burnt Mill

By LOUISE SASSOON

TRAINS are now notorious for not running on time but for many years they managed to roll into Harlow on the dot.

Before arriving from London at Harlow station (now Harlow Mill), steam engines once puffed over a level crossing into Burnt Mill station, the centre of a small village of that name.

When that village was demolished in the 1960s, the level crossing and the old railway buildings disappeared and the present Harlow Town Station was constructed.

In its day, the old railway station was the pride of the village and those who worked there. Its platform edges were whitened once a week, lamps cleaned daily and it was kept litter-free – quite a change from some of the stations we see these days.

Hazel Lake, editor of The Life And Death Of Burnt Mill Village, supplied Nostalgia with this images of the station when it was in full working order.

Her book, which features people's memories of the village, depicts a very efficient service.

One entry states: "Burnt Mill station was always immaculate and the trains always seemed to run on time – we told the time by them. Expresses used to thunder through on their way to Cambridge, Ely and Norwich. The engines had lovely names, like John of Gaunt, Hereward the Wake, Winston Churchill, and there was a train called Fenman."

Another anecdote claims stations in the area used to have competitions for cleanliness, which Burnt Mill won one year.

"It was lovely and warm at the station. There always used to be a coal fire, the waiting room was lovely. It cost tenpence to go to Sawbridgeworth then."

Its closure in the '60s came about due to the need for it to cope with increased passenger numbers brought about by the building of the New Town.

The structure that stands there today is now a Grade 11 listed building, meaning it cannot as easily succumb to the same fate as its predecessor.

FROM THE PAGES OF THE STAR 25 YEARS AGO

LAST SERVICE IN 900-YEAR-OLD CHURCH?

A small congregation took part on St Andrew's Day in what may be the last service in 900-year-old St Andrew's Church in Nettleswell. The church is redundant but is waiting for the hand-over to Harlow Council.

SPECIAL HAT FOR BRIDE

Pretty Jean Wiskin wore a hat made by her friends at Pitney Bowes specially for her on the day before her wedding. She married Harlow Council gardener Billy Smith at St Paul's in the town centre and went on to a reception at Churchgate Hotel.

SAFETY CODE FOR CHEMICALS

A guide to the use of all chemicals and training for all supervisors involved in their use are among safety measures to be introduced by Harlow Council. The decision follows an incident at Harlow swimming pool in which a council workman was dragged from the pool after using paint stripper.

THIEVES KNOCK DOWN TODDLER

Callous thieves knocked down a two-year-old little girl and ran off with her mother's handbag, which contained nearly £3,000 jewellery and cash. The attack happened on the fourth floor of Harlow's Harvey centre car park last week.

Cabbies facing assessment of motoring skills

DRIVERS applying for cab licences in Harlow could effectively be made to re-take their driving test at a cost of £60-70 under plans intended to safeguard passenger safety.

Licensing chiefs want new applicants for private hire and Hackney carriage licences to pass a Driving Standards Assessment, which includes many of the elements of a driving test such as using mirrors, signals, speed and emergency stops. They also want them to be tested on the Highway Code.

Applicants currently have to pass medical checks and complete an assessment of their local knowledge, as well as prove they hold a full driving licence.

The plan was agreed by the council's licensing committee on Monday and will go to January's environment and community committee for ratification.

If approved, the council will make it compulsory for applicants from April 1, 2009 to undergo the test – and pay for it out of their own pockets.

The move is understood to have been endorsed by both private hire and Hackney carriage drivers. It comes just weeks after the council enforced legislation making it compulsory for private hire drivers to undergo random alcohol and drugs testing.

Licensing committee chairman Nick Churchill said: "Both the council and the trade representatives want to ensure local people have confidence in the local licensed drivers."

"We all agree that applicants should be assessed as competent drivers at the point they apply to carry customers. We aim to have the highest standards in Harlow for our Hackney carriage and private hire drivers to ensure that they have a good reputation and, in turn, see the benefits for their business and the safety of their customers."

Council to consider 'street fine' targets

COUNCIL staff could soon be set targets for the number of fines they issue for common offences such as littering.

Wardens who enforce the regulations are being consulted over which offences currently policed by the authority would be suitable for the measures.

Harlow's ruling Tory group has drawn up the proposal in a bid to improve the town and reinforce its tough manifesto.

The targets are being considered as a way of meeting one of the council's corporate priorities – a list of its key aims and objectives over the next few years – which includes promoting and protecting green spaces.

These are due to be rubber-stamped at a meet-

By LOUISE SASSOON, News Editor
sassoonly@hertssexnews.co.uk

ing of the full council tonight (Thursday).

Council leader Andrew Johnson insists the move is not about raising funds by stealth and said law-abiding residents would welcome the policy.

"I don't know yet what offences it is best for; there are some FPNs (fixed penalty notices) which are only issued once a week, which obviously would not be worth setting a target for, but for the more common FPNs such as littering, a target would be more appropriate," he said.

"We are asking staff at the moment to see what they think will have the most impact on the ground."

He added no discussions had taken place regarding a possible bonus incentive for staff to hit targets and said the idea was just one small part of the corporate priorities list which has been compiled following lengthy public consultation.

If the document is agreed, it will put key issues such as the regeneration of the town, the environment, housing and value for money at the top of the council's to-do list spanning 2009/10 to 2012/13.

But Labour leader Mark Wilkinson said he was not sure that setting targets for catching people flouting rules was realistic.

"I am not for people dropping litter but it could be seen that the Tories are trying to make money out of people," he said, adding he would not be supporting the corporate priorities list because it makes no mention of the council's commitment to protect housing stock or discretionary services.

Family caught in mortgage trap

A FAMILY'S plan to financially downsize has been scuppered because their bank refused to let them take out a smaller mortgage.

As a result, Martin (51) and Cheryl (46) Horn, of Paddock Mead, Harlow, now have to stay in their three-bedroom semi-detached house.

The couple, who have a son Wayne (11), contacted the Abbey to change their £260,000 mortgage for one of £160,000 because they were looking to move into a smaller house in order to ride out the recession. But they were shocked when they were told they were not allowed to reduce their level of borrowing.

They learned of the decision just days after the Government announced measures banks should take to protect homeowners from repossession.

Mrs Horn, who works as a childminder, said: "I just couldn't believe that they were refusing to lend us £100,000 less! We have never missed a mortgage repayment but they said that we don't meet the criteria."

"It just doesn't make sense and it seems they would rather repossess our property than help us find a cheaper mortgage. We were just trying to do the sensible thing."

She said a move to a smaller home was intended to reduce electricity and fuel bills as well as council tax and mortgage repayments.

As a result of the decision, the couple have lost potential buyers for their house and now fear they will not be able to afford their mortgage repayments next year.

They have complained to Abbey but have yet to receive a response.

An Abbey spokesman said it refused the couple's new mortgage application following a referral to a credit agency.

"The matter has been brought to our attention again and we have reviewed the original application in detail. However, the decision has remained the same."

Raiders steal cash machine

POLICE are investigating after thieves stole a cash machine from Harlow Stadium.

Staff at the Roydon Road dog track discovered the break-in when they arrived for work on Monday morning.

CCTV images are said to show the raiders driving up to the doors, attaching a rope to the car and the door handles and then driving away, pulling it from its hinges.

They are then seen putting a chain around the machine, which is thought to have contained around £1,000, and dragging it away.

Christmas repeats

SHOPPERS were given tips on how to battle the credit crunch and recycle their blues away at a visiting road show.

Essex County Council, in partnership with district and borough councils, gave out ideas on how to recycle and re-use outside Asda, in Water Gardens, on Friday.

Among the advice offered were recipes for festive leftovers and the idea of sending e-cards instead of Christmas cards. Free recycled wrapping paper and a Christmas recipe card were also handed out.

Staff sickness forces closure of hospital unit

A HIGH dependency unit for seriously ill patients at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital had to be temporarily closed due to lack of staff.

The state-of-the-art unit, which assists people who are at risk of their condition deteriorating, was shut on Sunday.

Patients who would have been treated at the centre had to be transferred to the Intensive Care Unit, which is run alongside it.

One disgruntled worker told the Star the situation was "ridiculous" adding: "This is affected people who were very seriously ill and need one-to-one care."

"There are 10-12 members of staff at the unit but they did not have enough to keep it open, so they closed it."

A PAH spokesman said the unit was closed on Sunday because of sickness, which is understood to have kept up to three nurses from work.

He added that it was open again by Monday morning and all patients who were moved to the ICU received the one-to-one care they needed.

MEP sets sail for disability event

ESSEX Euro MP Richard Howitt promoted a global disability campaign by visiting Harlow's Canal Boat Project.

During Friday's visit to the Burnt Mill Lane charity, which provides boats adapted for use by the disabled, he took the helm of its newest vessel Stort Daybreak and spoke about the importance of making activities accessible all.

He also discussed establishing exchanges with disabled organisations in Europe so that even more people can have access to the water.

Mr Howitt, president of the European Parliament's Disability Group, said: "The International Day of People With Disabilities is important both to celebrate those people with disabilities and also to draw attention to the issues."

LOST dogs could soon become a thing of the past thanks to a new hi-tech tracking system designed by a Harlow entrepreneur.

Andrew Stuart (47), of Harlow Common, quit his banking job to concentrate on launching a range of canine collars which emit radio frequencies and allow owners to keep tabs on their straying pets.

The information can be picked up by a computer or mobile phone and the collars can even be programmed to send a text message to the owner's phone if the dog wanders beyond a pre-programmed distance.

Mr Stuart said the idea was sparked while his business partner Jon Bryan, from Buckinghamshire, was walking his dogs.

"Jon was taking his two spaniels for a walk in a wooded area and spaniels quite often have the tendency to run off," he said. "Suddenly, he thought it would to a good idea to have a tracking system.

"He went home and researched it on the internet but couldn't find anything. That's when he came to me with the idea."

After two-and-a-half years of planning and preparation, the product – which is being marketed by the pair's company Retrieva – is due to go into production this month and will be available to buy in January.

Mr Stuart has been using his own dogs to test the gadget and said the product has already attracted global interest, with farmers in Australia inquiring about it for their sheep.

But even before the product has gone on sale the pair are already exploring other options for the device.

"We have had inquiries from carers for vulnerable people, including sufferers of autism or Alzheimer's," said Mr Stuart. "This is designed to give people peace of mind."

Mandy confident of Hub jobs boost

By LOUISE SASSOON
News Editor
sassoonl@hertsexnews.co.uk

EVEN with the UK economy in the grip of recession, the time is right to launch Harlow's first business start-up centre.

That was the view of political heavyweight Lord Peter Mandelson when he visited the town on Thursday to officially open the Harlow Enterprise Hub.

During the ceremony, which was attended by more than 100 dignitaries and representatives of the local business community, the Secretary of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform unveiled a plaque.

Guests included Harlow MP Bill Rammell, Harlow Council leader Andrew Johnson, Essex Business Consortium chairman Sir Michael Hodgkinson and Richard Ellis, chairman of the East of England Development Agency which, alongside part of a £10m Growth Area Fund grant from the Government, gave £3m to the project.

Lord Mandelson also gave a speech in which he praised the opening of the centre in Edinburgh Way and predicted the benefits it will bring to the town.

Afterwards, he told the Star it was anything but a bad time to open the facility, despite the fact many businesses in the town were falling victim to the economic downturn.

"What we are talking about is giving new businesses a home to encourage them to grow over three to five years. That is longer than is predicted the current recession will last," he said.

"It is important that as we experience the downturn we also focus on the upturn that will follow.

"This will be protecting small businesses from the current climate; it will bring job opportunities for people in Harlow."

He said the Government had set out a string of measures to protect small firms and that he was confident the recession would not have an impact on the number of businesses looking to move into the centre.

The Hub will provide office space as well as bespoke business advice for new firms in order for them to develop.

Kevin Horn, chief executive of Hub manager NWES, said seven tenants had already been lined up to move in to the centre and that he expected 20 per cent of the 55 units to be filled in the coming weeks, with 70 per cent occupancy at the end of the first year.

Lord Mandelson last visited the town 10 years ago.

"Harlow has changed and improved," he said. "It is a stronger place that has a good reputation as a centre for research and it is a town looking towards the future. It is modern and changing."

Daughter's anger at hospital patient care

PATIENT care at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital has been criticised by the daughter of a man with multiple sclerosis who she claims was left for five days without being washed.

Donna Oliver (27), of Tilbury Mead, Harlow, claimed she witnessed a catalogue of failures including another patient's catheter bag overflowing and a blood-soaked tissue lying in the middle of a ward for hours before it was cleaned away.

Mrs Oliver's father Arthur English (47) has been receiving treatment at the hospital during the past four years and in that time she claimed staff had mistaken an epileptic fit for drunkenness, which resulted in him being arrested, and on another occasion they were subjected to a torrent of abuse by the boyfriend of a nurse who pricked herself with a needle while trying to insert a cannula – a narrow tube – into Mr English's hand.

But she said it was during more recent visits to see her father that she grew increasingly concerned about the quality of care he was receiving.

She claimed he had not been washed for five days despite the fact he was beginning to smell and said a cannula had not been flushed for six days because staff were unaware it was in his arm as it had not been written in his notes.

"It had dried blood and a dirty bandage on it," she said.

"Had we not have asked, it would still be in his arm now."

She also alleged his MS was not recorded in his notes and as a result he was expected to walk using crutches, despite not being able to.

"It is an absolute nightmare up there, nobody is communicating," she said. "We have had a lot of experience of things which are not good."

Mrs Oliver has since made a formal complaint about the cannula and has received an acknowledgement from the hospital to say the matter was under investigation.

A PAH spokesman said it would investigate Mrs Oliver's other allegations if a formal complaint is made.

MP delighted as OFT investigates gym complaints

A CHAIN of health centres is under scrutiny from a consumer watchdog following a flurry of complaints about its Harlow premises.

The Office of Fair Trading has confirmed it has launched an investigation into Esporta after being contacted by Harlow MP Bill Rammell, who has been approached by constituents unhappy at certain trading practices at the company's Water Gardens fitness centre.

Mr Rammell has criticised Esporta on several occasions after customers told him they were unable to cancel their memberships. In April, nine people succeeded in having their memberships terminated following his intervention and Mr Rammell got involved again in June after more customers came forward with complaints.

Now John Fingleton, chief executive of the OFT, has written to Mr Rammell to say he has requested trading standards officers in Wokingham, where the company's HQ is based, to instigate an investigation.

Mr Rammell told the Star: "I am delighted the OFT has seen fit to address my complaints with an investigation into Esporta's practices. In all my time as Harlow MP, I have never received so many complaints about one company operating in the area."

"Last week marked the 25th constituent complaint I received about Esporta. This investigation will hopefully mean this will be the last."

Mr Rammell said Mr Fingleton informed him trading standards had been involved in discussions with Esporta over the three-months cancellation period written into members' contracts, forcing the company to make changes to its standard contract.

Nobody from Esporta was available for comment at the time of going to press.

Hamper treat for victims of crime

By LOUISE SASSOON
News Editor
sassoonl@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ELDERLY victims of crime are to be given a helping hand this festive period after local groups joined forces to deliver surprise gifts.

Volunteers from Harlow police and the Salvation Army plus Pitney Bowes employees have been packing food hampers for 50 pensioners whose lives have been affected by crime.

The thoughtful gesture is the brainchild of Pitney Bowes worker Terry Kirkby, who went on a £1,000 shopping spree in Tesco to pick festive treats for the hampers, which include hams, jams, pickles, Christmas pudding, mince pies and chocolate mints.

As an added gift, the store agreed to put in an extra £5 gift voucher on top.

The food was packed by the team at the town's Salvation Army HQ, in Tendring Road, on Monday.

They will be delivered by Police Community Support Officers and Salvation Army members.

Mr Kirkby said: "This is the first year we have done this. We usually do hampers and give some to the police, but this year we decided to focus solely on the police and giving them to the victims of crime."

Christmas can be quite a lonely time. "We are giving them to the police and the Salvation Army to hand out because they have first hand knowledge of people who have suffered as a result of terrible crimes." Mr Kirkby thanked everybody who helped pack the hampers and those who will be handing them out.

"This is a real community thing to do and enables us to give something back to the people of Harlow at this time of year," he added.

Sex health advice

BUSES are being used to drive home the message about the potentially devastating sexually transmitted disease chlamydia in a move which has been welcomed by health chiefs in Harlow. Adverts displaying the message 'Just because you can't see it ... doesn't mean you don't have it' are being put up on public transport in the west of the county.

West Essex PCT chlamydia screening co-ordinator Louise Palmer said she backed the adverts and added: "One in 10 sexually active 15- to 24-year-olds has chlamydia."

The disease can cause infertility and ectopic pregnancies as well as pelvic inflammation, symptoms which can often go undiagnosed.

Two get Lotto cash

TWO Harlow groups have been given a share of a £300,000 windfall grant to put towards improving their services.

The Team Activity Group was awarded nearly £8,000 from the latest round of the Lottery's Awards For All programme while the Creative Space Artists Cooperative received £8,320.

A total of £331,266 was distributed among 52 groups throughout the East of England in the grants scheme which is administered by the Big Lottery Fund.

Big Lottery Fund regional head Jonathan Clark: "Across the 52 fantastic projects sharing well over £300,000 this month, there is a combined spirit of community and achieving the impossible. Groups celebrating heritage, culture, learning and the environment are all that bit closer to realising their goals and making a tangible, positive impact on the world around them."

80 years young

HARLOW Pensioners Action Association chairman Les Coben marked a milestone when he celebrated his 80th birthday.

Cash and curry

A GOOD cause was helped when a Harlow restaurant cooked up a fundraising dinner.

Spice Master at The Pink Cottage, in Commons Road, laid on food and entertainment to raise money for the Princess Alexandra NHS Trust Breast Care Unit.

Cabaret was provided by an ABBA tribute act and a raffle was also held to bolster the charity coffers, raising more than £200.

Firefighters' wash

FIREFIGHTERS went into action when they held in a charity car wash to raise cash for St Clare Hospice and the Fire Service Benevolent Fund. The event last Saturday raised £583.75.

Marathon appeal

HARLOW marathon runners are being called on to take part in the 2009 London Marathon on behalf of the charity Sense, the national charity supporting deaf/blind children and adults in the south-east.

The charity has a limited number of Gold Bond places available for the gruelling world-famous 26-mile course. For a registration form, contact Sense fundraiser Ed Charles by emailing ed.charles@sense.org.uk or calling 01372 840321.

Caroline's big year is as good as gold

A WOMAN has achieved a Duke of Edinburgh Gold Award after completing a year of community-based projects. Caroline Apps (24), of The Maples, Harlow, received her certificate at St James' Palace, in the presence of the Duke himself, last week. She received the award after completing a 12-month programme of activities such as helping people in the community and taking part in residential activity. She also completed a three-day 50-mile walk through the Pyrenees Mountains and helped organise a Scout jamboree in Chelmsford.

"Although it was a tough challenge, it was a very rewarding experience and it was a great honour to receive my award from the Duke in person," she said.

Thieves targeting cars of hospital staff

CALLOUS thieves are breaking into the cars of hospital staff as they go about their work tending to the sick.

More than 30 vehicles are said to have been broken into at Princess Alexandra Hospital in recent few weeks.

One woman told the Star her brother, who works as a doctor at the hospital in Hamstel Road had his car broken into twice in the space of three weeks – both times while it was left in the staff car park. The most recent incident happened last Tuesday.

"On both occasions, he has gone to find his car windows smashed, which has cost him almost £500, not to mention the inconvenience of getting home after working 14 hours straight and then having to go to work early the following morning without his car," she said.

"I cannot put in to words how disgusted I am that after working so hard to contribute to the success of this hospital, he seems to have received no real protection from these crimes or any real support of note."

Police said they were aware of the situation and urged people not to leave any items of value visible when leaving their vehicles unattended.

A PAH spokesman said security had been increased as a result of the break-ins, which started as part of a town-wide spate of car crimes in October.

"This escalation of security is focusing in particular after dark when most of these incidents have occurred," he said. "We are reviewing the lighting in the car parks and also reviewing our CCTV surveillance."

"Harlow police are also upping their presence with patrols, both in cars and on foot, through the site. We are also working with the police to look at other ways to secure vulnerable areas."

Police arrest 16 in drug swoops

By LOUISE SASSOON
News Editor
sassooni@hertsexnews.co.uk

DRUGS were seized and 16 people arrested when police carried out a major operation to crack down on drug dealing in Harlow.

The raids, which were the culmination of months of intelligence gathering, saw 75 officers search properties throughout the town as well as in some London borders.

A total of 28 warrants were obtained for individuals who were suspected of carrying out more than 100 drugs-related offences.

Ten strike teams carried out the series of early morning raids last Wednesday as part of Operation Nocturn.

Detective Inspector Jock Gibson, who headed the operation, said: "This operation focused on specific individuals identified for drug dealing in the Harlow area through intelligence-gathered information."

"People from the London area who thought they could come into our town to deal were also targeted. The raids gave them a rude awakening and put the fear back where it belongs – with them!"

He said police had received fantastic support from people within the Harlow community who did not want drugs-related activity in their neighbourhoods.

"Our message to drug dealers is clear: we will take positive action on anyone suspected of this type of crime. So don't get too comfortable over Christmas as it might not be

CRACKDOWN:

Santa coming through your door!"

Harlow Council leader Andrew Johnson welcomed the action. "There is a strong partnership between the council, the police and other agencies to tackle crime and create better neighbourhoods to live in," he said.

"Communities want action and to see those committing crime targeted. Although this operation targeted suspected drug dealers, there will also be a major impact on reducing associated crimes like burglaries and thefts.

"Harlow is no better or worse than any other town in the country for drug crime. However, action like this will send out a clear message that Harlow isn't a soft touch when it comes to drug dealing and other crimes."

Town's Olympic stars receive civic honours

TWO Harlow members of this year's British Olympic team will be honoured for their achievements at a ceremony tonight (Thursday).

Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall will present civic awards to judo star Peter Cousins and rowing cox Acer Nethercott in recognition of their participation at the Beijing Games.

Former Passmores pupil Mr Cousins (27) took up judo at the age of five. He was hotly tipped for a medal at Beijing after winning a silver in the 2007 Judo World Championship but was knocked out of the competition in the early stages after a controversial judging decision.

"I feel very proud to be thought of in this way," he told the Star. "I've always been proud to come from Harlow."

Mr Nethercott (30), who won a silver medal at the games, said: "I feel very humbled to be recognised by my home town in this way. I am honoured and feel deeply privileged to be receiving it."

The former Mark Hall pupil was the cox for the medal-winning British team in the eights competition.

A lifeline for the homeless

By LOUISE SASSOON

News Editor

sassoonl@hertsessexnews.co.uk

IMAGINE living rough on the streets, not knowing if you are going to survive from one day to the next.

And then, if you can, imagine what it must be like to be thrown a lifeline when you least expect it.

Tom Bulbrook (62) and Patrick Cullen (59) know exactly what that feels like; earlier this year they turned up on the doorstep of Harlow charity Streets2Homes, in Wych Elm, looking for help.

"I came to Harlow in July when I left London after my wife died of cancer," former security guard Tom told the Star, which is backing the charity's campaign to raise funds so that it can continue its vital work helping the homeless.

"I had a flat and everything but I decided to come here because my family was here. But when I got here I found out they had moved.

"I was sleeping in a field and wearing three or four shirts and a leather jacket for warmth, but I didn't get any sleep because I was shivering. It was so cold.

"I didn't know I was walking around sometimes because my brain had just switched off. People would just walk past me but I was lucky because I didn't get beaten up. I think even the yobs couldn't believe an old boy was out on the streets.

"Somebody found me on a roundabout near the town and took me to Streets2Homes. If it wasn't for them I don't think I would be here today.

"I was lucky. I got on the rent deposit scheme and now I live in a house in Berecroft. I pay £10 a week and I think that is reasonable. It has made such a difference to my life.

"It is nice being able to be a member of society again and I thank Streets2Homes for that."

Pat believes that if it had not been for the help given to him by Streets2Homes, he would now be in prison.

"I have lived in Harlow for 21 years

GIMME SHELTER:

Above, a cubby hole beneath one of Harlow's town centre car parks became 'home' for one person living rough.

Right, a flashback to last week's Star appeal and was living in Ladyshot when I got laid off work. I had no money and I got upset and had a few problems. I was getting Job Seekers Allowance - I still had a house and everything, but then I had nothing.

"I was on the streets and saw Bob in the town and he said I should go over the Streets2Homes. They looked after me and got me a sleeping bag and tent and they gave me a food parcel on a Saturday because it's closed then. It's not open all week because of lack of money.

"If I hadn't come to Streets2Homes I would be in the nick, not for anything serious but for shoplifting or for doing something to try to get food.

"I was begging for money. I would go into the Jobcentre to get money but I didn't have an address so I couldn't, but now I can give an address and everybody is happy.

"I think this place should be subsidised by Lottery funding or something because they wouldn't turn anybody away. They are the ones that are really trying to help people in communities.

"It is really important people realise how this place helps people out."

● DONATIONS are already coming in as a result of the Star's appeal.

Among them are a bag of clothes and toiletries and a £20 note which was handed in by one reader, while staff at Harlow firm Raytheon have supported the centre with a cash gift.

If you would like to make a donation of any kind to Streets2Homes, contact Patsy Dye on (01279) 430011 or drop it in to the Star office at 6 West Gate.

Clothing, sleeping bags and blankets as well as cash donations would be greatly appreciated to help Streets2Homes carry on its work.

Prison let-off for man who attacked partner

A MAN who admitted assaulting his partner causing actual bodily harm has walked free from court after being given a nine-month suspended sentence.

Dean Coulson (43), of Abbotswold, Harlow, was also ordered to attend alcohol treatment and domestic violence programmes.

Chelmsford Crown Court heard on Monday how Coulson grabbed Kay Greenly by her throat and smacked her in the face.

Lynne Shirley, prosecuting, said: "There was blood everywhere and he wouldn't let her go, saying 'You're going to see me dead'."

Ms Shirley said that Miss Greenly's hair had been wound round her throat so that she could not breathe and Coulson hit her in the face several times.

Elaine Stapleton, representing Coulson, said in mitigation he had expressed genuine remorse for the attack and that while he had been in custody he had attended Alcoholics Anonymous sessions.

Passing sentence, Judge Charles Gratwicke told Coulson: "Anybody listening to the evidence couldn't be anything but horrified in the way you treated that lady. It's not the first occasion you've been violent to women.

"Courts have said people who behave in this manner can expect to receive custodial sentences to mark the seriousness and to try and deter others. The experience must have been horrific in the extreme."

However, the judge said after reading reports he was able to suspend the sentence.

Rap star filming at dog stadium

AMERICAN hip-hop heavyweight 50 Cent headed for Harlow to pursue his acting career in a new gangster film.

The multi-platinum selling rapper was filming part of his role as a ruthless loan shark in the new film Dead Man Running at Harlow Greyhound Stadium only weeks after co-star Danny Dyer was there shooting his part.

50 Cent, whose real name is Curtis Jackson, shot to fame after the release of his previous film Get Rich Or Die Trying.

The stadium, in Roydon Road, was closed to the public while filming took place on Tuesday.

The cast also includes Tamer Hassan and Dyer who have appeared in The Business, who were down at the dog track two weeks ago shooting their parts in the film.

Dead Man Running is due to be released in late 2009.

Seeking to save gentlest giants

A VAST new park has been created in the African country of Cameroon to try to protect a critically endangered species of gorilla.

There are only thought to be about 300 Cross River gorillas left in the world today, with 115 of them now living in safety in the 261 sq mile Takamanda National Park.

The gorillas have lost much of their natural habitat because of trees being cut down by loggers, farming and road-building, while some people even hunt the gentle giants.

But animal experts say the new national park should help to stop these threats by protecting the animals living there – which also include forest elephants and chimpanzees.

Steven Sanderson from the Wildlife Conservation Society said he hoped other countries would follow the conservation example set by Cameroon.

"The government of Cameroon is to be commended for taking this step in saving the Cross River gorilla for future generations," he said.

"By forming this national park, Cameroon sends a powerful message about the importance of conservation."

Pupils have the X factor for polling day

ST MARK'S: Pupil power was put into action when children at the Tripton Road school went to the polls to vote for candidates in the Harlow Youth Council and Young Essex Assembly elections.

Students were issued with individual voting cards and every child in the school was given the opportunity to register and cast their vote in the school hall – which was transformed into a polling station for the day last Wednesday.

The school has a strong tradition of serving the community through Harlow Youth Council and Young Essex Assembly; currently 12 St Mark's students serve on the youth council and nine stood as candidates for election this month.

Assistant headteacher Mel Gunn said: "They are keen, and proud, to be the voice of the young people of the town."

Christmas wrapped up for Romanians

HENRY MOORE: Kind-hearted children at the Kiln Lane school learned the true meaning of Christmas when they packed hampers to be delivered to less fortunate children in Romania.

Dozens of shoeboxes were filled to the brim with luxury items and presents for youngsters in the country and then wrapped in festive paper.

They will be delivered by the Samaritans during the coming weeks as part of its Operation Christmas Child campaign, which last year delivered 250,000 shoeboxes to children in Romania.

Building interest in project

BROADFIELDS: Barratt North London managing director Glyn Hopping treated pupils and teachers from his former school to a tour of the company's Fifth Avenue development.

Some 21 children from the Freshwaters primary were shown around the £100m project for which Barratt is building 750 new homes.

The youngsters watched various construction vehicles in action and had a go at bricklaying and block-paving.

The tour culminated with a look around the show village and a Q&A session in Barratt's sales and marketing suite.

Headteacher Mary Dickinson said: "I'd like to thank Glyn for a great visit to Fifth Avenue, which was all the more special due to his being a former pupil of Broadfields. The children had a lovely time learning important lessons in building site safety while also having lots of fun trying their hands at bricklaying."

Your NHS just keeps getting better

Improved access to primary health care

NHS

West Essex

GETTING to see your doctor has been made easier thanks to an agreement reached between local GP practices and NHS West Essex.

Routine appointments can now be made early in the morning (before 8am), in the evenings (after 6.30pm) and on Saturday mornings at the majority of surgeries in west Essex, depending on the hours agreed with NHS West Essex.

Out of ten practices in Harlow nine are offering extended hours. Many of the practices are also offering appointments to see the practice nurse or healthcare assistant.

NHS West Essex's Uttlesford locality director Toni Coles said the arrangements were good news for patients.

She said: "With practices offering longer opening hours patients will be able to book a routine appointment to see a GP from their practice."

Toni added: "We had 55 per cent of our practices offering extended hours in November and we currently have 78 per cent of practices offering extended hours with more practices planning to provide."

"For many of our patients this means they will now have an opportunity to see a GP from their practice outside working hours at a time that is more convenient to them."

She added: "Patients will also be able to access their practices to make and cancel appointments, order repeat prescriptions, obtain test results and make general enquiries during these hours. Overall the extended hours offered will further improve patient access to their general practice."

The majority of practices will have both GPs and nurses or health care assistants working during the extended hours period.

Healthy developments for Harlow

EXCITING plans are progressing to bring modern purpose-built health facilities to the people of Harlow.

As the town prepares to grow, with the prospect of thousands of new homes in the area in the coming years, NHS West Essex is already planning for the future with proposals to upgrade and enlarge two health premises in the town.

The ambitious plans include replacing Lister House, at Staple Tye, with a new building to accommodate a GP practice, PCT community services and a dentist and community pharmacy.

Osler House Medical Centre in Potter Street - which is run by ChilversMcCrea Healthcare - is also set to expand, with the practice moving to a new site nearby with the current site to be developed for housing.

The new premises will accommodate the GP practice, the pharmacy and some PCT community services.

NHS West Essex's Harlow locality director Liz McGranahan said: "These plans mean local people will have purpose-built, modern facilities to provide medical care closer to their home."

"The patient groups at both practices welcome the proposals. It means GPs will be able to do some of the things that up until now have been provided in hospital. Also having an on-site pharmacy will prove more convenient for patients."

"With more space they will be able to provide more services. It will allow staff to work in a more integrated way."

Osler House Medical Centre practice supervisor Hugh Weller-Lewis said: "We will be able to provide improved and much-needed community facilities. It will be a new building which will be modern and for that reason alone better suited to modern medical care."

Rory McCrea, local GP and chairman of ChilversMcCrea Healthcare, said: "We are delighted with these new facilities which will help us meet our aim of improving everyone's experience of healthcare."

Both Lister House and Osler House are owned by Harlow Health Centres Trust which is working in partnership with NHS West Essex.

Lister House Medical Centre senior partner Dr Mukesh Rajani said: "The new premises will provide significant and substantial benefits for our patients."

"We will also maintain our commitment to a personalised service for patients by having their own named GPs who will continue to provide continuity of high quality care and services for our patients in much better and modern premises, suitable for the 21st century."

Approval of the Lister House scheme will enable the practice to increase the number of patients from 17,000 to about 20,000. Osler House will see the number of patients can grow from 3,500 to 5,000.

Liz McGranahan said: "Lister House is a third the size it should be for the patient list that it is caring for – so they are bursting at the seams."

"Both practices will be doing more minor surgery and both will have more GP space, PCT space (for primary care trust staff) and a pharmacy which neither has at the moment."

NHS West Essex hopes the new Lister House premises will be operational in April 2010 with the new Osler House up and running in April 2011.

Liz McGranahan said: "The PCT is working with Harlow Renaissance to consider other primary care premises developments in the town."

INTERIORS WITH FISHPOOLS

A WORLD OF FURNISHING IDEAS

Winter is here for another year, bringing with it the wintry evenings and frosty mornings that make you want to snuggle up under the duvet for 'just five more minutes'. So now is the time to plan ahead and make sure that your bedroom is the perfect haven to relax and unwind in.

Bedtime bliss...

Here at Fishpools we appreciate the importance of the bedroom - a place to rest, a place to pamper, a place to escape to - most importantly, a place to enjoy.

The bedroom is where you spend a lot of your time but it is often overlooked on the style front - sometimes for reasons of practicality or budget or more often because you think that visitors won't see it so it's not as important. Whatever the reason there's a bedroom solution to suit all tastes and budgets at Fishpools.

The Alexandria range offers decadence on a grand scale in a French Louis XV style and antique silver or ivory finish - instant dramatic effect and sumptuous style for any bedroom.

Similarly, but on a less dramatic scale, the Romance range will look great in simple, understated rooms. Accessorise with florals and pastels and the look will be as romantic as the name suggests.

Romance

Lille

For those of us who prefer a more modern, clean look, the solid oak Nimbus bedroom range, available in four finishes and boasting strong, robust lines, is the height of sharp, minimal styling and will last a lifetime.

For simple but classic style, the Lille is an excellent choice, which would work well in both a traditional detached property or contemporary apartment. The warm cherry finish and curved lines make this a timeless choice and luxurious statement in bedroom style. Team it with crisp, white bedding and a metallic throw for a truly sumptuous look.

So whether you treat yourself to a whole new look including a bed, robes and chests, or choose one key statement piece to instantly transform your bedroom into the perfect escape, Fishpools has the answer.

And with more than 50 ranges to choose from the ideal bedroom is closer than you think.

Festive fantasy aims to be the beast ever

HENRI is a handsome Prince who has it all but his charming looks conceal a nature which is arrogant, rude and bad tempered.

When he makes the mistake of offending an enchantress, she conjures up a powerful curse to teach him a lesson in humility by transforming him into a ferocious and hideous beast, his servants into bizarre creatures and his opulent palace into a dark, cold and forbidding place.

After skulking inside his castle for 15 lonely years, the despondent prince still awaits salvation, which can only come if he finds true love.

But when he captures an unwary traveller and holds him hostage, the man's kind-hearted daughter Belle offers herself in exchange and an uneasy friendship begins to blossom between captive and captor.

But can the beast finally learn how to love? And will Belle see through her captor's hideous exterior to find something worth loving inside?

In Harlow Theatre Company's new, adventurous and magical adaptation of the classic 18th century fairytale Beauty And The Beast, writer and director Paul Johnson hopes to capture both the hearts and minds of audiences this Christmas.

With a magnificent set, a very capable cast and a breathtaking beast costume designed by top puppeteers, the production will be one of the group's most ambitious shows yet at Old Harlow's Victoria Hall Theatre, and Paul told the Star how vital its success could be in securing the long-term future of the venue.

"This year is very important as we are nearing the end of our lease agreement and a strong performance at the box office is crucial to negotiating an extension to the lease and securing our future - as well as demonstrating the continued importance of the venue to the community of Harlow and the surrounding area," he said.

"The rehearsals have been going very, very well and I've got a superb and varied cast of 20 people to work with - the youngest member is just eight-years-old!

"I have also tried to make the show as family-friendly as possible by introducing lots of humour and, hopefully, instilling some of that Disney magic. Overall, I'm very pleased with how things are shaping up."

● BEAUTY And The Beast runs until December 21 and tickets are still available for both matinee and evening performances. Early shows start at 3pm on Saturday, Sunday and December 21, while evening performances begin at 7.30pm and run until December 19. Tickets cost from £6-7.50 and are available from (01279) 420062.

Alien is back to deliver a new warning to Earth

WHEN Michael Rennie stepped off a flying saucer in Washington DC in 1951 with a stark warning to the people of Earth, he ushered in a new era of respectability for science fiction.

As the alien Klaatu, backed up by towering robot Gort, he was an emissary sent to give a world caught in the paranoid grip of the Cold War a chance to evolve peaceably – or perish to preserve galactic harmony.

More than half a century later, the message of The Day the Earth Stood Still is as pertinent as ever (perhaps more so, given that we've never really heeded it), but did it really need to be remade with Keanu Reeves in the lead?

No disrespect to the man because he's just fine in roles requiring him to look a little dozy and uninformed, like Neo in The Matrix or Bob

THE DAY THE EARTH STOOD STILL

Arctor in A Scanner Darkly. But casting him as a superior intelligence from another world seems as poor a fit as his turn as old school font of wisdom Siddhartha in Little Buddha.

It's also odd that the studio's keeping the film under wraps until its release – never a good sign in an industry which thrives on advance hype.

Some changes have inevitably been made. Klaatu's here this time to warn us to be nicer to our environment, his show of power ironically looks to be a lot more destructive than merely stopping all machines for a short period and the robot Gort is now some sort of organic contrivance.

Mostly, it looks like being the usual effects-heavy Hollywood product, which is a shame considering the shoes it's seeking to fill.

Terrifying way to get lost in a page-turner

INKHEART

certificate PG, running time 1h46m

WHAT if you could read a book and bring the story to life around you?

Inkheart is a fantastical family adventure based on the bestselling novel by Cornelia Funke about a secret class – the Silver Tongues – who possess such a gift.

Yet this special ability comes at a terrible price – for every fictional character allowed to leap across the divide, a real person must take their place in the strange two-dimensional world of ink.

Director Iain Softley marshals a largely British cast for his fast-paced and colourful adaptation.

Doting father Mo Folchart (Brendan Fraser) has kept a secret from daughter Meggie (Eliza Bennett) – he's a Silver Tongue and inadvertently sent his wife Teresa (Sienna Guillory) into a book called Inkheart.

Ever since, Mo has scoured second-hand bookshops for a copy, desperate to undo his misdeeds.

Stumbling upon an old copy of Inkheart, Mo finally believes he could be reunited with Teresa, only for the past to catch up.

A stranger called Dustfinger (Paul Bettany), who comes from Inkheart, tries to warn the Folcharts about the villain Capricorn (Andy Serkis) who has ambitions of a life beyond the printed page.

Inkheart is a fun-filled journey between real and imaginary realms, with a gentle mix of comedy and action as Mo and his daughter use the gift to reunite their fractured family.

Serkis chews the scenery as the bad guy with a fascination with everyday 21st century objects ("I love duct tape!") while Fraser resorts to his usual action heroics.

still showing

MADAGASCAR: ESCAPE 2 AFRICA This colourful computer animated sequel cheekily recycles the plot of The Lion King. Eric Darnell and Tom McGrath's film strands its menagerie of misfits in the wild, where they discover the courage to follow their hearts and to reclaim a birthright as king of the jungle. As in the first film, Sacha Baron Cohen merrily scene-steals as a crazy lemur. Kids will squeal at the slapstick and bright colours, but parents and older audiences will have to search harder for amusement.

TRANSPORTER 3 Jason Stratham returns as Frank Martin in Olivier Megaton's brawny yet brainless sequel. Expect car chases and punch-ups galore in this high-octane action movie, where some scenes verge on the ridiculous. Transporter 3 appropriates an eco-friendly central theme as a hook, but the filmmakers are more interested in orchestrating mayhem than saving the planet.

CHANGELING Based on a shocking true story, a single mother arrives home to find her son has disappeared without trace. After months of fearing the worst, the police claim to have found him. Unfortunately, it's a case of mistaken identity but in order to avoid a media maelstrom, she's forced to lie.

A war on terror consumes Gotham

THE DARK KNIGHT
(Warner Home Video, 12, retail & rental)

For once, you can believe the hype – director Christopher Nolan's The Dark Knight is the moment both superhero movies and the summer blockbuster come of age.

Building on the excellent groundwork he laid in Batman Begins, Nolan and sibling co-writer Jonathan take Gotham's caped vigilante into entirely new territory, delivering a barbed, vicious action thriller perfectly attuned to America's contemporary preoccupation with terrorism.

A conflicted Batman (Christian Bale) is pondering the possibility of a more normal life as alter ego Bruce Wayne now that his nocturnal activities have so dramatically lowered the city's crime rate, but he's brutally yanked back into the game with the emergence of The Joker (Heath Ledger).

Less a costumed criminal than a psychotic agent of chaos, The Joker's opening gambit is an audacious, corpse-littered bank heist, but that's only the beginning of a campaign of murder, mayhem and bombings seeking to bring Gotham to its knees – "You'll see, I'll show you, that when the chips are down, these, uh, civilized people ... they'll eat each other. You see, I'm not a monster. I'm just ahead of the curve."

All that stands between him and his desire to demolish decency are Batman and white knight Harvey Dent (Aaron Eckhart), a district attorney whose own moral zeal sets him up to be transformed into the horrifically scarred and monstrous Two-Face.

By grounding his story in as much plausible realism as he can muster, Nolan gives it chilling, visceral edge; he could drop the comic names and costumes and still be left with a pulverising, gritty crime thriller more akin to The French Connection or Heat than the genre's usual larger-than-life antics.

The tragedy of Ledger's untimely death is forcefully brought home when you witness the quality of the work he does here. This Joker simply banishes all memory of Jack Nicholson's buffoonish turn in Tim Burton's 1989 Batman, recreating the character from the ground up as a formidable and relentless threat. His tongue restlessly probes the gruesome facial scars carving out his trademark smile as if he can't stop tasting his own pain; a sweating madness oozes from under his smeared greasepaint until it's almost possible to smell the sickness coming off him – it's a tour de force performance and totally deserving of the posthumous Oscar for which he's been so widely touted.

His scenes with Bale positively crackle with a toxic tension, each throwing the other into sharp relief as two sides of the same coin as the Dark Knight is pushed beyond his own clearly proscribed boundaries and into the realm of physical intimidation and illegal surveillance in order to mount a successful opposition; it's impossible not to draw parallels with Guantanamo Bay and the shadowy arsenal of tactics deployed by Western governments in the 'War On Terror'.

Dent has no such qualms, reducing moral responsibility for his decisions to the toss of a defaced coin and it's a testament to the strength of Eckhart's talents that the grotesque Two-Face ultimately elicits as much sympathy as revulsion.

Amid all this, Nolan still delivers the goods on the action front – the emergence of the Batbike from the wreckage of the Batmobile delivers a gleeful adrenalin burst – but it means so much more in this richly textured context.

THE FOX AND THE CHILD
(Pathé Distribution, U, retail & rental)

March Of The Penguins director Luc Jacquet has crafted a magical tale of a young girl's relationship with a fox in this visually enchanting family film.

Filmed amid breath-taking mountainous scenery of golden woodlands and lush valleys, the story opens one autumn morning when a 10-year-old girl (Bertille Noël-Bruneau) chances across the path of a vixen and becomes captivated by the creature.

Embarking on a solitary series of daily explorations in search of the fox, she's frustrated when an accident leaves her laid up at home for the winter with a broken foot, but uses the time to learn all she can about the species.

Meanwhile, out in the snowbound wilderness, her fox goes about its life, searching for food while attempting to stay off the menu of larger predators and finding a mate.

Come the spring, the girl once again seeks out her fox and the pair slowly form a bond which will change her life for ever.

Jacquet frames his story as a touching fable, a quality amplified by the decision to tell the story almost entirely via visuals and a narrative voice-over (provided by Kate Winslett), although he never lets whimsy obscure the harsher realities of life in the countryside and the threats (human and animal) facing the fox.

The quality of the photography is astounding and the viewer can only marvel at the effort and patience that must have gone in to creating such natural-seeming moments of the fox and girl at play in their mythical landscape.

Star rating: ★★★★★

THE MUMMY: TOMB OF THE DRAGON EMPEROR

(Universal Pictures, 12, retail & rental)

Universal's 1999 effects-heavy reboot of its old Boris Karloff classic The Mummy was a lightweight hoot, even if it did feel more like an unofficial instalment of the Indiana Jones franchise.

Although its own sequel, 2001's The Mummy Returns, got by with even fewer brain cells and a lot of ropery CG, both films radiated a personable charm thanks to the pairing of square-jawed action hero Brendan Fraser and adorable Rachel Weisz as their wise-cracking romantic heart.

Weisz smartly declined to return again but the chemistry lost as a result leaves this third outing little more than a big noisy spectacle.

Rob Cohen replaces Stephen Sommers as director and the action switches from Egypt to China where the evil Emperor Han (martial arts star Jet Li) and his army are being awakened from a centuries-old curse which turned them into terracotta statues (not strictly mummies, but there you go).

There are a few well-mounted and exciting action sequences but Maria Bello fails to fill Weisz's corsets and lacks any palpable chemistry with Fraser, himself too often sidelined in favour of Luke Ford as his on-screen son.

Do you know who caused the fall in property values? I am certain a lion's share of the blame is with the building societies and the banks, possibly closely followed by one or two surveyors who seem to be more concerned about the media reports than what is really happening out there!

You may remember, I was ranting and raving about building societies earlier in the year. Just two years ago, they would be happy to lend you a million times your income (slight exaggeration...) and probably 120% of the purchase price, plus cash backs and other goodies? It's they who encourage people to borrow loads of money, along with an umbrella, and now it is raining, they are down-valuing, refusing to lend and, by the way, they want their umbrellas back.

Anyway, what a wonderful year it has been. Thoroughly enjoyable, had a great time and when everyone keeps saying, "how is it going?", our response is "challenging"!

But let's be positive. We are confident some time during the coming year things will improve. We are certainly optimistic, proactive and as far as we are concerned, the glass is half full.

We will be here next Christmas in 2009 and during the coming year we will be letting you know our views at regular intervals about the local market, flagging up the good and the bad, taking the mickey out of ourselves and our industry but, above all else, plain speaking and as honest as we can, expressing our views for better or worse.

Merry Christmas to you all. Thank you to everyone who has been in touch with us during 2008, please come back next year, everyone is welcome.

Fears for Robins as boss quits

RICHARD Branchflower has slammed suggestions he quit Sawbridgeworth Town due to his unhappiness at a lack of commitment among the players.

The Robins manager left his post on Thursday and was followed out of the exit door at Crofter's End by skipper Adam Sontag, who has switched to Essex Senior League rivals Takeley.

Chairman Steve Day has reportedly said that Branchflower resigned as he felt the players were not pulling their weight.

Sawbo have been in the bottom half of the table for much of this season, but Branchflower has suffered more than his fair share of injuries and suspensions to key players.

Branchflower claims he has quit due to Day's running of the club and his insistence on only using Sawbridgeworth-based players and youngsters.

His assistant Peter Wickham has taken temporary charge until the end of the season.

The 37-year-old had been in charge since 2007, following the departure of Don Watters, who also quit after falling out with the chairman.

"He said I left because of the non-commitment of the players," he said.

"We were struggling with injuries and suspensions. We were down to the bare bones. I had taken players on loan from Harlow and Braintree and I was scouting for more established senior league players.

"He [Day] is quite happy to be losing 10-0 each week because they will never go out of the Essex Senior League - even if they finish bottom. He knows they will never get relegated."

It all sounds a very similar scenario to that which ended with Watters quitting.

"He [Day] just wants to use youth players. Clive Lynch and Steve make all the decisions. There is no committee. They are hindering the club from going forward. We were arguing all the time," Branchflower said.

He knew of local people who wanted to help the club and pay for a new clubhouse. "He [Day] is scared of relinquishing his position as chairman.

"If he moves on there will be a big difference. There is a fantastic bunch of players there," he added.

Day was contacted by Star Sport but did not return our call.

Wickham will be assisted by Kevin Shuttlewood this Saturday. Both players were brought to the club by Branchflower. "I want to wish them all the best, but I'm not sure how long Peter will stick it for," he added. Wickham got off to a winning start on

DOWN AND OUT: Richard Branchflower has quit as Robins boss

Saturday as the side defeated third-placed Southend Manor 1-0 at Crofter's End in the Essex Senior League.

Jim Wyatt scored the only goal from the penalty spot on 40 minutes. This came just seconds after another penalty was awarded to Sawbo but Kevin Moore's spot-kick was saved.

On Tuesday, Sawbridgeworth Town won 4-2 at home to Bedford Town on penalties in the South Midlands Floodlight Cup.

This was after normal and extra time produced a 2-2 draw. Phil Fisher opened the scoring for Bedford on five minutes.

Richard Longley equalised on 15 minutes and Ashley Conlan put the hosts in front seven minutes before the break.

Jay Fattorusso levelled on 83 minutes, before Sawbo won on spot-kicks.

James aims for GB gold

ENGLAND marksman James Huckle has set his sights on reaching the 10m air rifle final at next month's Australian Youth Olympic Festival.

The 18-year-old from Old Harlow was one of the stars of the show at the 2008 Commonwealth Youth Games in Pune, India, in October winning three gold medals for England.

He is one of three England shooters who have been chosen to represent Great Britain at the festival.

Sheree Cox and Victoria Mullin will also represent Team GB in Sydney.

Huckle, who is a member of the United Glass Rifle and Pistol Club in London Road, will contest the 10m air rifle event in Sydney - one of the three competitions in which he won gold in Pune.

He will be up against marksmen from the USA and China, and expects the competition to be particularly fierce. "I'm really looking forward to it," said James. "Making the final is my goal. It's going to be a tough challenge to win a medal - you probably won't get a much higher standard at a world championships."

Huckle, who would like to represent England at the 2010 Commonwealth Games in Delhi and Great Britain at the London

2012 Olympic Games, said competing in Pune was an invaluable experience. "I enjoyed India," he said. "I enjoy shooting events, but competing at a multi-sports event was a completely different experience."

"I got to meet lots of people from other sports and see how they train. It was a really good insight."

"I knew winning a medal in each event in Pune was possible, but getting three golds was amazing, I wasn't expecting that."

Huckle struck gold in the 10m air rifle, the 50m rifle three-positions and the 50m rifle prone in Pune.

His performances helped Team England to finish third in the overall medal table at the Games.

Hawks fail to end Sutton jinx

THE rub of the green continues to avoid Harlow Town as Ryan Kirby's men went down by three goals at Gander Green Lane on Saturday.

It was the visitors' third consecutive defeat and the Hawks have now not beaten Sutton United in the 13 competitive games between the sides since 1979-80.

The Surrey side were on the backfoot in the first half but showed their clinical edge after the break following a let-off when Mark Taylor missed a penalty for the Hawks.

"You look at three-nil and think 'that's awful' but we totally dominated the first half," said Harlow player-boss Kirby.

"We had four excellent chances, but we are getting punished at both ends. But we are the only ones that can do something about that."

Kirby dropped back into defence in the continued absence of Danny Chapman (thigh injury), with Taylor pushing up into the midfield.

Sutton Utd 3, Harlow Tn 0
(Ryman League, premier division)

The home side took the lead on 19 minutes in fortuitous circumstances. David Hughes' shot was well parried by Harlow keeper James Hasell but the ball still looped over him and under the bar.

James Bunn wasted a decent opportunity when he flicked wide from close range after a cross from Jamie Richards.

Jordan Fowler's header from an excellent Shaun Gliddon free-kick was stopped low by Sutton stopper Darren Behcet.

The hosts had a let-off when Gliddon's deflected shot hit the foot of the keeper's left-hand post on 36 minutes.

Six minutes into the second half, Hasell did well to block a shot from Matt Hann.

Billy Dunn doubled the lead moments later when his deflected effort from a Hughes' free-kick wrong-footed Hasell and crept inside the near post.

At the other end, Harlow were awarded a penalty on 58 minutes when Leon Lalite was tripped by Dean Palmer. Taylor's penalty was saved low to his left by keeper Behcet, making only his second appearance for the U's.

Hasell's outstretched right hand denied Palmer a third for Sutton just after the hour mark, before a scramble in the area led to Paul Kear hooking off the line.

Harlow continued to create chances but Richards fluffed a gilt-edged opportunity when Bunn flicked on Hasell's long goal-kick. The former Chelmsford striker had just the keeper to beat but fired wide.

Dunn's second and Sutton's third was either spectacular or lucky depending on which end of the ground you stood. His first-time volley from long-range gave Hasell no chance.

Bunn missed another late chance for Harlow on a bitterly disappointing day for the Barrows Farm men.

HARLOW TN: Hasell, Taylor, Holding (Green 64), Hollenbach, Kear, Kirby, Lalite, Fowler, Richards (Hill 72), Bunn, S. Gliddon. Subs not used: Adeyinka, Bruno, Peagram. Att: 636.

Duo off to Las Vegas

CANONS Brook golfers Tom Breheny and Micky Hewlett have qualified for the world team event final in Las Vegas.

Playing at the Lambourne club in Buckinghamshire, the two friends won through to the finals and now represent England at the exclusive Cascata club in Las Vegas, Nevada, in January.

Breheny has been having lessons with Alan McGinn, the club professional at the course in Elizabeth Way, Harlow, for 15 years. "This is in exchange for haircuts - not sure who has the best deal!" McGinn joked. "But it's good to see them in the final. Well done guys."

Harlow defeat leaders

AN 89-81 win over league leaders Cambridge Cougars has given Harlow Hawks great optimism for 2009.

Hawks got off to a great start in Friday's Herts County Basketball League division one match, with back-to-back three pointers from player-coach Shab Niaz.

Scores from Paul Jessop and a Mike Freeman three-pointer kept the hosts ahead.

Scores from Freeman and Mark Haddow put the Hawks 30-20 up at the first break, but Cougars stormed back.

Stuart Burgess, Jessop, Freeman and Niaz ensured Harlow were 74-63 up at the start of the final quarter, a lead they kept until the end. Scorers: Niaz (27pts), Jessop (24), Freeman (18), Haddow (9), Allan (9), Burgess (2).

● SHAB Niaz's 26-points haul helped the Hawks win 64-50 at Hatfield Jacks in a Herts County Cup group game on Sunday. The side could visit Cambridge in the last eight.

Top seed clinches derby victory

FIRST seed Ian Gould won the decisive match to clinch a 3-2 win for Annor Harlow Squash Club at home to Stortford.

Gould won the deciding rubber 15-7, 15-8, 15-6. Earlier, Harlow fifth string Peter Iszatt won 3-2.

Fourth string Rob Coghlan lost in straight sets, but third string Dan Collison was triumphant after winning a tense final set 16-14.

Harlow's second string Andy Davis lost in straight sets.

'Worst display in club's history'

HARLOW suffered a humiliating 16-0 defeat at Plashet in division three south east of the East Men's Hockey League on Saturday.

The Passmores side were missing two key players including skipper Joe Symonds.

Plashet scored two controversial goals and were 6-0 up at the break. Stand-in captain James Smith's half-time words of wisdom appeared to fall on deaf ears as the hosts scored 10 more goals in the second half.

"In truth it was probably the worst performance in the club's history. Each player who was involved has to look at himself and raise their game to the level that made it possible to gain promotion last year," Smith said.

Harlow are next in action at home to Waltham Forest on January 17. HARLOW: C. Chandler, Jones, Kirk, Gorringer, Harvey, Krzowska, Smith, Light, Cholerton, Shearman-Slack, R. Chandler.

Rookies shine in U-16s' win

DESPITE possessing four Under-16 players the Harlow Rugby Club U-17 team completely overwhelmed East London.

Ryan Clark, Will Lewis, Darren Terry and Terry Smith joined older boys in this 12-a-side 60-0 victory.

The Harlow three-quarters revelled in the wide open spaces and the Young Rams scored seven tries in the first half with four conversions.

In all Harlow scored 10 tries, seven of them coming from the back line.

Fly-half Danny Smith added four conversions plus a try.

Kieran Gleeson also converted one try for the visitors.

Lennie Hayden bagged a hat-trick of tries, centre Jordan Cable and wing Chris Turner scored two each with centre Will Lewis, Danny Smith and wing Ryan Clark getting one apiece.

It was a different story for Harlow Colts, who were defeated 60-5 at Colchester.

The Harlow colts were never in the game which Colchester won convincingly.

Indiscipline cost them dear as they gave away penalties in dangerous positions.

Second row Stuart Ansell scored the Young Rams' only try.

Harlow U-15s, containing six U-14s, lost 38-12 at home to Barnet.

In the first half Barnet scored twice before Harlow replied with a Henry Lunn try.

Rams prop Jamie Alden scored a second-half try and this was converted by Ryan Matthew.

Relegation lifeline for rampant Rams

With 10 minutes remaining Mersea sucked the Harlow defence into the midfield and their winger scored in the corner.

Near the end McFerran kicked a penalty to take his personal contribution to 13 points.

Skipper Eynon said: "We had a lot of ex-players watching and I think that really fired us up. The atmosphere was fantastic. It was a great relief at the end when we had won. The confidence you get from a win is vital."

"It's not so much about a few wins and getting safe - we must make sure that we are winning these games that we have been losing by just a few points. Now we must push on."

HARLOW: Prindiville (Branch 55), Wilkins, Webb, Hawkins, Twiner, Roberts, Covington (Paine 40), Eynon (C), Harron, McFerran, Webb, Powell, Vanbeck, Woodington (Grimley 50). Banks.

Dover and out as injury crisis looms

Hasell aggravated his shoulder injury, but bravely carried on and made a brilliant point-blank block from the onrushing Shaun Welford after a mistake by Hollenbach close to the hour.

However, Dover netted a second moments later. Welford broke down the right before crossing for Giuliano Grazioli to divert the ball across Hasell and inside the far post.

Mark Taylor's 74th-minute free-kick was well saved by Dover custodian David Wilkinson after Bunn was fouled on the edge of the box.

Ten minutes later, Richards had another great chance after a fantastic cross-field ball from Hollenbach. However, Wilkinson superbly saved from point-blank range.

HARLOW TN: Hasell, Taylor, Holding, Hollenbach, Kear (Lalite 68), Kirby, Green, Fowler (Bruno 9), Richards, Bunn (Hill 87), Gliddon. Sub not used: Peagram. Att: 751.

Dover & out

Injury crisis hits Hawks' bid to end losing run

THE Hawks were counting the cost of a midweek defeat at run-away league leaders Dover Athletic as Ryan Kirby's men could be without up to FIVE key players for Saturday's home match against play-off chasing Tonbridge Angels.

Midfielder Jordan Fowler twisted a knee just minutes into Tuesday's match and is out of the weekend's league match.

Leon Lalite ('flu), centre-half Danny Chapman (thigh), keeper James Hasell (shoulder) and defender Beckett Hollenbach (on holiday in Moscow) could all miss Saturday's visit of the Kent highfliers.

Player-boss Kirby hopes to bring in one or two youngsters from Southend United to cover the shortfall.

He also hopes to re-sign Raphael Sylvester. The striker, a hit while on loan last season, has been released by Leyton Orient.

Meanwhile, Kirby admitted

Dover Ath 2, Harlow Tn 0
(Ryman League, premier division)

he could try and poach some Bishop's Stortford players, who could quit in the light of the sacking of their manager Martin Hayes.

It comes as Harlow try and end a disappointing run which has seen them claim just a point from the last five league games.

Ahead of the Tonbridge game, Kirby said: "We are at home and I think that's a good thing as we are getting hurt at the moment. That's five games without a league win and we are back to last season."

"We must not let our heads go down. There is still so much to play for. But we must get tighter at the back and stop conceding goals."

Assistant boss Kevin Warren has approached Sylvester to return to Barrows Farm. "Kevin has invited him down," said Kirby.

INJURED: Jordan Fowler

The Hawks only arrived in Kent 25 minutes before kick-off after an horrendous three-and-a-half hour journey in traffic.

The then lost Fowler very early on and he had to be replaced by rookie midfielder Tom Bruno. "It was an even bigger challenge then, to be fair," added Kirby.

Dover, who have a 100 per cent home record this term, took the lead after only three minutes. A Jon Wallis corner was passed short to Frannie Collin on the edge of the box, who drilled through a mass of bodies into the top corner.

Fowler exited on nine minutes to be replaced by 16-year-old Bruno who worked tirelessly.

Collin produced an excellent save from Hasell, making a good low stop at the expense of a corner.

At the other end, Harlow offered little in attack with James Bunn and Danny Green wasting their only chances.

After the break, Jamie Richards was unlucky not to level. The striker ran clear after latching onto Hasell's goal-kick but blasted the ball at the keeper's chest.

Relegation lifeline for rampant Rams

A CORNER was turned as Harlow re-ignited their ailing season with a vital victory against fellow strugglers Mersea Island on Saturday.

The result allowed the Rams to climb out of the bottom two and overtake their opponents in the table.

Inspired by director of rugby and veteran scrum-half Lee Harron, the hosts totally out-played their Essex rivals and raced into a 22-0 lead after only 25 minutes.

Rams dominated the game for long periods and the Harlow pack – orchestrated by skipper Paul Eynon – controlled the set-pieces throughout. Harron put Mersea under immediate pressure with a box kick, and from the subsequent 5m line-out prop Paul Prindiville powered over the line.

Fly-half James McFerran kicked a difficult conversion.

Moments later another line-out in the Mersea half saw the ball moved along the line with McFerran looping round to take Charlie Woodington's pass and score in the corner.

A third try came on 15 minutes. A speculative kick

Harlow 30, Mersea Island 15
(RFU London division three north east)

from McFerran prompted a fumble from the Mersea winger and Harlow winger Chris Webb followed up and dived on the ball to touch down.

McFerran added the conversion.

McFerran added a penalty before Mersea hit back.

Indiscipline cost Harlow points as Mersea took a tap penalty and forced their way over the line.

This try was converted and followed by a successful penalty on the stroke of half-time.

From a scrumage 10 minutes into the second period Harlow scored again. The Rams attacked down the blind side and winger Will Grimley, who had replaced Woodington just minutes earlier, exchanged passes with Eynon who broke clear to score out wide.
